

TRUE YORKSHIRE HOSPITALITY

Built in 1906 as a 'Palace of Business', The Grand, York now boasts some of Yorkshire's finest meeting rooms and event spaces. Originally the headquarters for one of the world's most famed railway companies, The Grand was born during the Golden Age of travel with luxury and opulence at the forefront. Today, with modern service and excellent facilities, coupled with its ideal location, The Grand provides the perfect backdrop for all your memorable and impactful events.

With elements such as cookery classes, afternoon tea, two restaurants, a spa and multiple external activities, allow our team to create a bespoke package that meets all your requirements.

Visit our website to find out more or call our team to discuss our full range of packages including Day Delegate, Residential, Hybrid and Cookery School.

EVENT SUITES

Our meeting and event suites are filled with the rich history of the former Railway Headquarters. With a range of styles, our meeting rooms are suited to both large groups and intimate bookings.

The opulent Grand Boardroom boasts stunning views across York and the city walls. With unique, original features it is perfect for large conferences or grand gala balls, whilst the panelled Chairman's Suite offers a decadent setting for more intimate occasions.

A further series of leading corporate rooms make for ideal meeting rooms, private dining, special occasions and break-out spaces. Additionally, The Cookery School offers a unique culinary experience.

THE GRAND BOARDROOM

The Grand Boardroom is our most iconic room and accommodates up to 100 delegates. This majestic space with floor-to-ceiling wood panelling, huge windows and an original parquet floor boasts grand views of York Minster and the City Walls.

The board table that once hosted meetings between the railway elite, political players, and the great and good of Yorkshire business was so large it had to be cut up to be removed! Today we utilise the space in much more flexible ways, making it suitable for an event, party, private function or presentation.

THE CHAIRMAN'S SUITE

The Chairman's Suite was the original office of the Chair of the North Eastern Railway and accommodates up to 40 delegates. After board meetings or during particularly grueling negotiations, the Chairman could retire to his suite and dine alone, with close associates or those he was keen to impress – and impress is what this room does very well.

Wood clad pillars, an ornate fireplace and views of the City Walls create an opulent mood. The perfect setting for important meetings, private dining and special occasions.

THE GIBB SUITE

The Gibb accommodates up to 14 delegates boardroom-style and 20 theatre-style. This room has a wall-mounted plasma television, Wi-Fi, air conditioning and tea and coffee machines. Alternatively, The Gibb is the perfect space for an intimate private dining experience.

This suite is named after Sir George Gibb who raised through the ranks to General Manager of the North Eastern Railway in 1891 before being knighted in 1904.

THE RIDLEY SUITE

Whether you are hosting a private dinner or a corporate meeting, The Ridley's Edwardian charm is a delightful addition to any occasion. The room holds up to 12 delegates boardroom-style and 20 delegates theatre-style and has a wall mounted plasma television, Wi-Fi, air conditioning and tea and coffee machines.

The Ridley takes its name from Sir Matthew White Ridley, Chairman of the North Eastern Railway in 1902 as well as Home Secretary in Lord Salisbury's government from 1895-1900.

THE LEEMAN SUITE

The Leeman, almost identical to our Ridley and Gibb suites, suits boardroom meetings for up to 12 delegates and 20 in theatre-style.

The Leeman Suite is named after arguably the most famous of York's railway men, George Leeman, who led an extraordinary life as a lawyer, Liberal MP and finally Chairman of the North Eastern Railway from 1874-1880.

THE PATERSON SUITE

Frank Paterson served as the General Manager from 1978 and 1986 and still resides in York. The suite is just as welcoming and charming as the man himself, accommodating up to eight people with a plasma television, Wi-Fi and coffee machine.

Perfect for intimate meetings, The Paterson Suite boasts large windows and high ceilings, creating a bright and airy space.

STAY WITH US

Spacious yet stylish, our Classic and Executive rooms are perfect for leisure and business guests. The Grand occupies two main wings; in the original building, the imposing Edwardian design means every guest room is supremely generous in size, with tall ceilings, large windows and beautiful architectural quirks such as porthole windows. Our contemporary wing blends heritage with modern simplicity, to create a serene environment.

The Grand's Suites are the perfect setting for a little extra luxury and space. With three different suite types to choose from, including the Penthouse Suite, you'll be spoiled for choice.

Work with our events team to create the perfect package for your guests to enjoy an overnight experience. Effortlessly add personalised in-room extras for each guest to make their stay a memorable one.

RELAX & RE-ENERGISE

Relax and unwind in The Spa at The Grand. Nestled in the building's former vaults, The Spa is an escape from the hustle and bustle of busy day-to-day life.

Melt away stress and tension with a relaxing spa treatment. Alternatively, simply enjoy our 14-metre swimming pool, Nordic dry sauna or relaxation lounge - you will depart feeling refreshed and recharged.
